General Comment

As a tax paying working class coal miner, I would like to ask why does my federal government insist on constantly making my livelihood tougher? I already work a schedule to supply for my wife and two boys who I spend little time with while I am at work. Money is tight, but we still pay our taxes while people like my deadbeat cousin (adopted) collect welfare and laugh about spending it on drugs and booze. If you don't think you are harming the working man by taxing his employer more, you are not thinking clearly. The less money my employer makes, the less I make. The less I make, the more overtime I have to work. The more overtime I work, the less time I spend raising my own children to be hard working responsible tax paying citizens like myself. Please consider the impact on real people before you tax my employer even more.

Thank you.
